| Content            | Course C 1 “Intensive Course” addresses questions pertaining to the cultural development of the various Anglophone regions of the world from a wider range of perspectives, including interdisciplinary perspectives. It also serves to broaden students’ knowledge base concerning the various Anglophone literatures and cultures. Courses can be chosen from linguistics and literary studies (including Anglophone Studies, German, African, and Arabic Studies), media studies, history, sociology, geography and other disciplines. Course C 1eco: Seminar and lecture topics integrate interdisciplinary perspectives such as socio-ecological issues, environmental ethical perspectives, and multispecies approaches. Seminar C 2 “Intensive Seminar” consolidates the theoretical and methodological knowledge acquired in Module A and intensifies the application of analytical and interpretative skills by addressing further core concepts of Anglophone intercultural studies such as interculturality, transculturation, transnationalism, and postcolonialism (C 1) and diaspora, globalism, and cosmopolitanism (C 2) as they pertain to the study of texts in American, British, and other Anglophone literatures and cultures. Seminar C 3 “Elective Seminar II” allows students to further broaden their knowledge of the regional diversity and entangled histories of the various Anglophone literatures and cultures. It may also serve to gradually develop a regional specialization. It can be chosen from the range of seminars offered in the fields of American, British, and other Anglophone Studies. Seminar C 3eco: Seminar topics integrate environment-related issues in the investigation of (historical) processes of cultural transformation in selected Anglophone regions. C 4 Independent Studies I “Independent Studies I” enables students to further expand their theoretical and methodological knowledge, their analytical skills, and their knowledge about a specific corpus of literary/cultural texts by developing a topic for a 3-hour written exam. The topic can be developed from the seminars taken in module C (from seminars C 1, C 1 eco, C 2, C 3, C 3eco). |                                                     |

| Content             | Seminar E 1 “Master Seminar” supports students with the independent writing of their MA thesis by discussing the project in terms of its contextualization in the relevant research contexts, in terms of its theoretical and methodological approach, and in terms of structuring the thesis. E 2 Master ThesisThe master thesis (25.000 to 33.000 words) demonstrates the student’s ability to independently address a chosen, circumscribed topic in literary/cultural studies. It pursues a pertinent theoretical and methodological approach, documents comprehensive knowledge of related research, and develops a coherent argument in appropriate academic language. Submission and grading of the master thesis is followed by a thesis defense (15 minutes presentation of thesis + 30 minutes discussion). |
